

LEHIGH VALLEY BUSINESS

New Salon's design adds a little COVID comfort

By: Stacy Wescoe

November 30, 2020 2:26 pm

The exterior of Flourish Salon & Spa. PHOTO/SUBMITTED

A new day spa recently opened just west of Allentown.

Designed by Sage Design-Build Inc. of South Whitehall Township, the spa not only gives residents of the Lehigh Valley a new place to get their hair and nails done, but it will give them the option to do it safely.

Flourish Salon & Spa, owner Carmen Huddleston worked with Sage to design and construct a unique privacy space.

Joe Landrigan, president of Sage, said the space was initially intended for customers requiring additional assistance.

“I think that was always part of Carmen’s vision,” he said. “They would use it for people who wanted a little more quiet and privacy.”

But now, with the COVID-19 pandemic, the area can also offer a separate space with those with other health and safety concerns who want to be cautious about infection.

“It was always part of the project but as the design progressed it went from the original plan for it to just be an area for privacy. She saw the added benefit,” he said.

He said the main salon looks like most other salons would, but the separate room allows a client to have their services all in one room with the stylist coming to them so there is less interaction with other people.

The full-service day spa, at 5036 Hamilton Blvd. in Lower Macungie Township, was a fit out of an existing space in a building that also houses the restaurant Notch. The spa offers traditional day spa services including hair, nail, facial, eyelash and waxing services.

---